1ST DEGREE MURDER VERDICT

NEW PHOTOS OF MRS. DUNPHY AND CHARLES E. GILES

LOWELL, Feb. 4.—Napoleon J. Wirt was found guilty of the murder of his friend, Joseph Galligan, today, the jurors having been out but thirty minutes. Although the defense refused to try the case, the deliberation, it is said, that they took but one ballot, and were unanimous for conviction.

The scene in the courtroom, with death-stillness prevailing, was intensely dramatic. The twelve men who were to decide on life or death for the prisoner had filed out at 10:20 o'clock. At 10:55 they sent back word that they had agreed on a verdict. Then, at 11:05, William H. Best, clerk, came in and announced that they did not re-enter the courtroom until they had decided on a verdict.

“Have you agreed upon a verdict?” asked Chief Ward of the foreman.

“We have,” was the trembling answer, and the jurors seemed about to collapse when he stood.

“What say you?” to the prisoner at the bar, guilty or not guilty?

“Guilty,” was the reply.

“Verdict of murder?”

“In the first degree.”

“Do you want any time?”

“No,” was the answer.

“The jury,” said the clerk, “finds the defendant, Charles E. Giles, guilty of the murder of Joseph Galligan, in the first degree, and recommends that he be sentenced to the State Prison for life.”

“The court,” said the judge, “finds the defendant, Charles E. Giles, guilty of the murder of Joseph Galligan, in the first degree, and sentences him to the State Prison for life.”

THREE MEN ATTACK AND TRY TO ROB CONDUCTOR

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 4.—Abducted at the point of a revolver and compelled under threat of instant death to accompany her captor, Mrs. Maria Albra of No. 18 Wayland block, Newmarket, N. H., is in the care of the police here today. They believe the story she tells and have arrested the man she accuses of the outrage. She is pretty, nineteen years old and married.

She ran up to Policeman McManis of the Third Precinct, and falling on her knees, begged him to save her.

“Have you, sir, any money?” he asked, and she handed him a five-dollar bill. “You are a wealthy man, then?” he asked, and she answered that she was a widow and had no money.

AMERICAN'S LINCOLN CONTEST IS INDORSED BY MAYOR HIBBARD

The literary contest inaugurated yesterday by the BOSTON AMERICAN for short compositions on the life of Abraham Lincoln is warmly approved by our citizens. The contest is for boys and girls of ALL public, private, parochial and Sabbath schools in Greater Boston. There are 200 cash prizes to be awarded and 200 sets of Ma M. Tarbell's "Life of Lincoln." For details of contest see inside pages of today's AMERICAN.

The following letter from Mayor Hibbard explains itself:

CITY OF BOSTON.
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR.
February 3, 1909.

To the Editor of the AMERICAN:

One of the most important tasks before the Municipal Lincoln Day Committee has been the work of interesting the children in all the schools in the study of the life of the Great Emancipator.

For that reason I am very glad indeed to commend the project arranged by the AMERICAN by which prizes are to be given to the children for the best compositions on his life.

In preparation for this contest the children and their parents as well will be brought to a more complete study of his wonderful character. It is a most commendable piece of newspaper effort.

Yours respectfully,
G. A. HIBBARD, Mayor.

FROHMAN OPENS WIDE DOOR TO STARDOM FOR ANY GIRL

Chance Offered Every New England Beauty to Rival the Successes of Dramatic Queens.

At no time in the history of the drama has the stage been so eagerly in need of recruits as now.

The man who makes stars realizes this best. He is Charles Frohman. He has made women men and women stars than any other theatrical manager in the United States of Europe.

He made John Drew. He made Maude Adams a star out of John Drew's leading lady. He made Edna May. He made Ethel Barrymore. He made Marie Dore. He made Ethel Barrymore. He made Marie Dore.

He is playing this week in "Whispering Willows" at the Park Theatre. Just at present Mr. Frohman is looking for material out of which to develop more women stars.

To be sure, the dramatic schools are turning out graduates by the score, but there is one other teacher to whom all managers like to be referred. That is experience.

Mr. Frohman has undertaken to give recruits and at the same time let his undertaker to preserve experience.

Makes Remarkable Offer. Generally persons pay money for experience in all lines. In this case Mr. Frohman will pay while the person is gaining experience. He makes through the BOSTON AMERICAN a competition offer.

It is open to every girl in New England who possesses good looks, ability, ambition and isn't afraid of HARD WORK.

He offers her a gift which from a contest in the BOSTON AMERICAN.

A first prize contract of $25,000. An opportunity to extend the contract indefinitely at a salary from ten to twenty times as much.

Contest of Strength in London and the United States. All girls who want to test themselves in this contest will be given the opportunity to go to the stage and address a public meeting on the subject, and address a public meeting on the subject, and address a public meeting on the subject.

Voters to Decide. For the next two weeks, on Feb. 11, the BOSTON AMERICAN will receive the photographs of all young women who wish to enter. The only girls entered are those who have had any previous experience.

From the photographs sent in fifty will be selected by Miss Helen Wright, a woman of letters, who has been in the theatre for many years.

These selected fifty photographs, identified only by a number, will be sent to the BOSTON AMERICAN and from them the BOSTON AMERICAN will select the girls who will receive the prizes.

The BOSTON AMERICAN will give the first prize of $25,000. The second prize of $10,000. The third prize of $5,000. The fourth prize of $2,500. The fifth prize of $1,250. The sixth prize of $625. The seventh prize of $312.50. The eighth prize of $156.25. The ninth prize of $78.12. The tenth prize of $39.06.

can get along without his high-class piano better than almost anything else in his house.

During these "tight-money" times we have sold pianos for prices so low that it seemed to us that people could not believe our sacrifice quotations. Some of our prices do seem ridiculous, but sell we must, and it's good, hard cash that's wanted by the sellers—it's the seller's tough luck that makes the buyer's good luck. To owe it to yourself to invest!

Great Babies Were Born One Hundred Years Ago--LINCOLN WAS ONE

Are the Babies as Good in Our Day? Probably; They Want
Simply THE OPPORTUNITY

One hundred years ago, in 1809, there was a wonderful crop of babies on this earth. There was baby Darwin—he convinced hundreds of millions that all naked human babies descend from hairy monkey babies.

There was Chopin, a dreamy, musical, very different sort of a genius; and Tennyson, who wrote poetry; and Gladstone, of the many political fights; and Poe, the creepy writer; and Edward Fitzgerald, who put the Rubayit into English better than the tent maker's original dialect; AND THERE WAS ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

A fine lot of babies there, but the best babies of the lot may be still unknown to the world. The biggest of men, those that bring absolutely new and permanent ideas to this earth, are often not recognized until centuries pass.

Probably Lincoln will stand out for many years to come as the great babe born that year of the great baby crop—the greatest and best century.

rapidly approaching Lincoln's one hundredth birthday. And you will hear a great deal about him in churches and newspapers, and everywhere. A brief, and for many reasons one of the most interesting articles on Lincoln, written by William H. Taft, the President-elect, appears in the new number of the Cosmopolitan Magazine, just published.

What Mr. Taft has to say of Lincoln is especially interesting, as Mr. Taft has just been elected to fill the office in which Lincoln found honor, glory, and death.

Mr. Taft says truly of Lincoln: "As I study him in his development and the position to which he attained, there is more inspiration for heroism and usefulness to the country than in the life of any other one man in history."

Lincoln is near us, and, with all his superiority, LIKE US. He wears the clothes and uses the language, and almost talks the slang familiar to us. He died for a cause that is still fresh in our memories. Even a feeble imagination can see him quite distinctly, tall, quiet, grave and worried, walking about the streets, head down, carrying the heavy load of a nation's responsibility, the responsibility of A NATION OF BROTHERS AT WAR.

Lincoln is especially valuable for the men and the boys and the women and girls of to-day, because he was SO MUCH LIKE THE AVERAGE AMERICAN, in birth and in education and lack of special opportunity.

He was poor, his father and mother were poor, and their people were poor before them.

He struggled for a little learning, and never got much of it, BUT HE USED WELL WHAT HE GOT. He was free, at least, from the curse of false education and false standards. Everything that he achieved was so much gained. He started out despising NOTHING. That was a great thing to begin with. He wasn't asking whether anything was good enough for Abe Lincoln. His one thought was whether Abe Lincoln was good for anything.

When he got a chance to split rails, that was honorable, desirable work. When he got a chance to work his way down the Mississippi, that was a glorious chance to travel and see the world; he never thought of hardship, he didn't wonder why he wasn't in a Pullman car, or riding on a fast motor boat. He felt that he was lucky to be going at all—that is one reason for his going so far in the end.

One fact about Lincoln encourages all men trying to do honest work, and Mr. Taft in his Cosmopolitan Magazine article emphasizes that fact. LINCOLN ENCOURAGES ALL OF THE MEN WHO ENDURE ABUSE IN THE EFFORT TO BE USEFUL. HIS LIFE, DEATH AND COURAGE MAKE IT IMPOSSIBLE FOR ANY MAN TO OFFER ANY EXCUSE FOR GIVING UP MERELY ON ACCOUNT OF HARSH OPINIONS AND UNJUST ATTACKS.

Mr. Taft writes:

The criticism and abuse to which he was subjected in the crises of the Civil War one is ashamed to review as a matter of history. And yet it is of the utmost value in the encouragement of others that they may not be borne down by the weight of hostile and persistent criticism.

This is especially interesting, coming from Taft, who soon will be President of the United States, soon attacked and criticized, justly and unjustly—vilified shamefully, perhaps.

Certainly Mr. Taft and others can find in the career of Lincoln comfort and consolation. No man could possibly serve the country more nobly, more efficiently than Lincoln did. No man could be attacked more shamefully than he was attacked.

When he came to New York, the so-called "respectable press" and "respectable citizenship" seeking to defend slavery and the cash that went with it, had accused Lincoln of every crime in the calendar, even of shameful and nameless crimes. When the heaviest load was on his back, and he was struggling as the people's humble servant to save a nation and to end a fight of brothers, the abuse and the shameful lying still continued in this country and in Europe.

He endured it all, and every man can find in Lincoln's career and courage the inspiration to endure injustice for the sake of truth.

We shall hear a good deal this year about the various wonderful babies born a hundred years ago. Of all the babies of that famous year Lincoln is the one for Americans to study and think about. He must have been an interesting BABY, long and queer and solemn.

He was a wonderful BOY, guided by that good-hearted, noble step-father, who helped him in his pitiful struggle for knowledge.

He was a very great MAN, and a noble soul.

Mr. Taft, in conclusion, writes:

One cannot read of Abraham Lincoln without loving him. One cannot think of his struggle, of his life and his tragic end, without weeping. One cannot study his efforts, his consolations, his heroism, his patriotism, and the burdens of bitter attack and calumny under which he suffered, and think of the place he now occupies in the history of this country, without a moral inspiration of the most stirring and intense character.

Young men ought to study the life of Lincoln; old men, too, and girls and women. And every human being was studies that beautiful life should be inspired with the desire to do something worth while something FOR OTHER HUMAN BEINGS, something apart from all personal interest and selfishness.

Turkish Women---And Others

The Spirit of Emancipation Has Inbaded Even the Harem

By CHARLES FERGUSON

A DISPATCH from Constantinople says that the Turkish women—who have just escaped from the age-long seclusion of the harem—have leaped all the evolutionary processes of liberty and set up a detailed claim for parliamentary rights.

Striking oddities peering through barred windows have suddenly suggested to the Turkish suffragettes the demand for the franchise in the legislative chamber and threatening a street demonstration in the event of their not getting it.

It is to be noted that the recent Turkish revolution—so remarkable and morally impressive for its bloodlessness—has guaranteed to women the same measure of that legal emancipation which has been won so slowly in the West—including the right to hold and dispose of a personal estate.

Obviously our traditional English idea of liberty as something that is passed down from precedent to precedent will have to be loosened up and expanded.

There is a swift, contagious spirit abroad in this modern world of feeling lightning and dawning print that laughs at the hoary laws of logical sequence. Time was that it took a thousand years to make a dash of progress in human progress, but now the stages of civilization may be covered in a single day. The passion for liberty—like love—finds reasons that no man can ever understand.

Of course, it is to be understood that the prevalent enlightenment of Turkish women would be impossible, and the universal outbreak of the harem would be easily suppressed by the ca-

What to Do in Emergencies

By Wex Jones

(With Acknowledgments to Punch)

NOT every one has sufficient presence of mind to do the right thing in cases of emergency. By memorizing the following list, presence of mind will be rendered unnecessary, as any situation may be met by simply recalling the advice presented in our series of headings.

On waking suddenly and seeing an angel in your room.

(a) Go to sleep again.

(b) Quickly extract a feather from the pillow and unceremoniously tickle the angel's nose until he moves himself unperceived. Mind and turn over to bed.

(c) When helplessly contrived by wife when put to bed state of 3:30 a. m.

(d) Turn and doze the water with all possible expedition. Open the outer door and then begin to snore.

(e) Seeing the devil or any other devil.

Swallow to battemity.

On slipping and falling on an icy pavement.

Join in the hearty laughter of onlookers. If you have broken any bones, smile genially and make some such remark as "That leg never was much, anyway;" and can get along as well with one arm as two.

On receiving a bill in the mail.

Turn it up.

On being hounded by a suffragette.

Use the formula out of your eye and dive into the subway.

On being asked to eat poison.

(a) If you hold or expect to hold public office, accept the invitation.

(b) If you are a private citizen, say you are a vegetarian.

On being asked to have a drink.

Have been late.

On getting into an argument about the suffragette law.

Get out.

On finding yourself on board a sinking ship in mid-ocean.

Send a wireless message for a tub.

On eating apple pie one which has been poured a French rabbi.

Make a dinner for an inclusive man for medical treatment.
